

PUBLIC-PRIVATE PARTNERSHIP CELEBRATES OPENING OF PARADISE CREEK

Related California, Community HousingWorks, the City of National City civic leaders and community groups celebrated the opening of phase one of Paradise Creek, a two-phased, 201-unit, affordable transit oriented-community located on six acres of land on the westside of National City, formerly utilized as a public yard for the maintenance of City-owned vehicles. The more-than decade long endeavor is one of the largest and most significant developments in National City and a major catalyst for neighborhood transformation and revitalization. Developed as a public-private partnership between Related California, the City of National City and Community HousingWorks, the ceremony was also the groundbreaking for phase two. Community HousingWorks will provide support, educational programs and resources for the tenants. ▶
